

Corporate Strategy Analyst

Bedrocan International is looking to hire a Corporate Strategy Analyst to help shape and steer the strategic direction of the company. This person will report to the Senior Corporate Strategy Analyst and be part of the Business Development and Finance departments of the company. The role will be located in Amsterdam and will initially be for at least four days per week.

About Bedrocan International

Bedrocan International is an experienced pharmaceutical raw material producer of legal medicinal cannabis and since 2003, via its subsidiary Bedrocan Nederland, has been the exclusive supplier of medicinal cannabis to the Office of Medicinal Cannabis in the Netherlands.

Bedrocan International believes that medicinal cannabis can, and should, meet all of the existing regulations for medicines. At the company, we strive to achieve the registration of medicinal cannabis and/or its derivatives as an official medicine through a regulatory process that is acceptable to patients, regulators, and healthcare professionals. Because of the pharmaceutical quality of our products, the variety of our products, and the possibility to export our products, many governments, scientists, and pharmaceutical companies across the globe have chosen to work with Bedrocan.

What you will do

Bedrocan International is currently in the midst of multiple international expansion efforts. The high-impact role as a Corporate Strategy Analyst will require working on engagements across the company, advising on issues concerning corporate strategy, joint ventures, investments, operational best practices, and pricing strategy, amongst others. The Corporate Strategy Analyst will serve as an interface between corporate finance, financial planning and analysis, and strategy.

What we ask from you

- 3-5 years of experience gained with a consulting firm, investment bank, private equity firm, or within a corporate development department of private or publicly traded company.
- Strong understanding of the principles of corporate finance, valuation methods, and financial statement analysis.
- Well-developed quantitative and financial modeling skills, including the ability to work on sophisticated financial models.
- Preferably an MBA or Master's degree in a related field.
- Strong project management skills.

- Excellent presentation skills, including strong verbal and writing capabilities.
- Language skills: English and preferably Dutch.
- Occasional business travel.

What we offer

- An exciting job at a fast developing and international expanding company where change creates opportunities for professional growth and our employees believe in the success of our products.
- Competitive salary.
- Opportunity to work from home.

How to apply
